

MANAGING EMPLOYEE PERFORMANCE: A FEDERAL SUPERVISOR'S GUIDE TO GETTING TOP PERFORMANCE FROM EMPLOYEES

By Michael Corum

TABLE OF CONTENTS

INTRODUCTION

CHAPTER ONE — PRINCIPLES OF PERFORMANCE MANAGEMENT

- Principles of Performance Management
 - Manage Performance, Not People
 - Performance Does Not Automatically Find Its Own Level
 - Performance Management is a Management Function
 - Performance Management is Not a One-Minute Job

CHAPTER TWO — SETTING PERFORMANCE STANDARDS

- Principles of Performance Standards
 - Emphasis
 - Conduct
 - Compliance with Regulations
 - Routine Activities
 - Knowledges and Abilities
 - Life or Death Matters
 - Certifications, Licenses, and Other Tickets
 - Specificity
 - Mission–Supporting
 - Measure Extended Performance
- Writing the Elements
 - Identify the Outputs
 - Identify Customer Expectations
 - Add Any Required Expectations From Higher Management
 - Choosing Critical Elements
 - Pitfalls in Writing Elements
 - Examples of Job Elements
- Writing the Performance Standards
 - Making Standards Specific
 - Using Existing Numbers
 - Using Descriptive Words
 - One–Time Objectives

- Different Types of Standards
 - One–Time Projects
 - Recurring Processing Expectations
 - Response Criteria
 - Improvement Objectives
 - Developmental Objectives
 - Project Milestones
 - Negative Standards (Counting Mistakes)
- Higher Rating Levels

CHAPTER THREE — MONITORING PERFORMANCE

- Principles of Monitoring
 - Economy
 - Timeliness
 - Objectivity
- Side–Effects of Controls
 - What You Count is What Counts
 - The Quality Control Paradox
 - The Trust Dilemma
 - Goals in Disagreement
 - Latent Effects
- Types of Monitoring Systems
 - Time Accounting
 - Inspections by Higher–Level or Third–Party Authorities
 - Production Records
 - Suspense Files
 - Work Samplings
 - Supervisory or Higher–Level Review
 - Event, Incident, or Problem Reports
 - User or Client Feedback
 - Financial/Budget Reports
 - Progress/Milestone Reviews
 - Activity Reports
- When to Create a Monitoring System

CHAPTER FOUR — FEEDBACK AND APPRAISAL

- Feedback Sessions
 - Informal Feedback
 - Formal Feedback
 - What You Can Do
 - Raw Information About Performance
 - Evaluation Against Standards
 - Higher Rating Levels
 - What Not to Cover
 - Conduct
 - Attitudes and Traits
 - Anything Else Not Related to the Outputs of the Job
- The Final Appraisal

Appraising Under a Pass/Fail System

CHAPTER FIVE — REWARDING PERFORMANCE

Awards Principles

Monetary Awards

Performance Award

Superior Accomplishment Award

Improvement Awards

Quality Step Increase

Awards Amounts

Non-Monetary Recognition

Honorary Designations

Certificates, Letters

Objects

Activities

Time Off

CHAPTER SIX — MANAGING UNDER A PAYBANDING SYSTEM

Principles of Paybanding

Broadbands

Salary Range

Placement Within the Band

Difference Between Salary Raises and One-Time Awards

Movement Within the Band

No Automatic Raises

Zero Sum Pay Pools

Factors Determining Movement Through the Band

Movement Into Higher Bands

Linkage with Appraisal System

The Supervisor's Role in Paybanding

Make Meaningful Distinctions Between Performance Levels

Spend More Time Giving Feedback and Talking About Performance

Make Meaningful Distinctions Between Employees

Do Not Commit Irreversible Error

CHAPTER SEVEN — PERFORMANCE AND CONDUCT

The Theory

Different Causes and Different Solutions

Differences in Degrees

The Practice

Send the Right Messages

Handle Conduct Problems Immediately

Removing People for Misconduct is Easier

The Disciplinary Process

Performance-Based Actions

Treat as Conduct if Possible

CHAPTER EIGHT — ISOLATING THE PROBLEM

Is It a Problem?

Causes of Poor Performance

Bad Instruction

Bad Feedback

Organizational Barrier

Punishing Work

Lack of Meaningful Consequence

Wrong Consequences

Inability

Checklist of Possibilities

Solutions to the Performance Problems

Bad Instruction

Bad Feedback

Organizational Barrier

Punishing Work

Lack of Meaningful Consequence

Wrong Consequences

Inability

CHAPTER NINE — COUNSELING EMPLOYEES

Steps Preceding Counseling

Principles of Counseling

Act Like a Supervisor

Be Serious

Format for Counseling

Explain the Purpose Directly

Give Facts About the Performance

Put the Performance Into Context

Describe the Consequences

Tell Exactly What Improvement You Expect

“Fleshing Out” and Clarifying Performance Standards

Set Time Limits

Put it in Writing

Employee Defenses

Too Much Work

Time Wasting

Slowness

Disorganization

Too Much Work

Documenting Workload

Lack of Training

Circumstances Beyond the Employee’s Control

Personal Problems

CHAPTER TEN — PERFORMANCE–BASED ACTIONS USING PERFORMANCE STANDARDS

Performance–Based Actions: An Overview

- Definition of Unacceptable Performance
- Opportunity to Improve
- The Performance Improvement Plan
 - When to Issue a PIP
 - Components of a PIP
- Fleshing Out Performance Standards
 - For Timeliness or Volume of Work
 - To Describe Quality
- Monitoring Work During the Improvement Period
 - Treating the Employee Fairly
 - Dealing With Denial
 - The Games People Play
 - “I Want That in Writing!”
 - “I Want a Witness”
 - “What About So–and–So’s Performance?”
 - “Nobody Ever Said This Before”
 - “I’ll File a Grievance”
- The Performance–Based Action
 - Procedural Steps in a Performance–Based Action Using Performance Standards
 - A Notice of Proposed Action
 - Reply to the Deciding Official
 - Final Agency Decision
- Why Agencies Lose Cases
 - Failure to Give an Opportunity to Improve
 - Poor Performance Standards
 - Absolute or Unreasonable Standards

CHAPTER ELEVEN — PERFORMANCE ACTIONS WITHOUT PERFORMANCE STANDARDS

- Elements of a Disciplinary Action
 - Cause of Action
 - Formal Action Appropriate
 - Penalty Justified
 - Proof of Facts
- When to Use Disciplinary Actions
 - Conduct Matters
 - Safety and Security Violations
 - Single Serious Acts of Incompetence
 - Deliberate Acts or Refusals to Follow Instructions or Policies
 - Acts Caused by Carelessness, Inattention, or Laziness
 - Performance Matters Not Addressed in Performance Standards
- Examples of Charges

ABOUT THE AUTHOR